DOES SIZE MATTER, TO THE VAGINA?

Studies from various universities suggest that the penis measures between 10cm to 15.6cm, with an average of 13.6cm. Such an average is generalized as a suitable reference to achieve sexual satisfaction in women; nevertheless, these studies do not go to a broader reality, and is the size of the vagina.

I would like you to reflect on these metaphors “analogies??”:

Can you imagine owning a Ferrari, if you live on a farm where there is no road to go out to drive?

Can you imagine being very rich and living in a place where you don't have anything to buy?

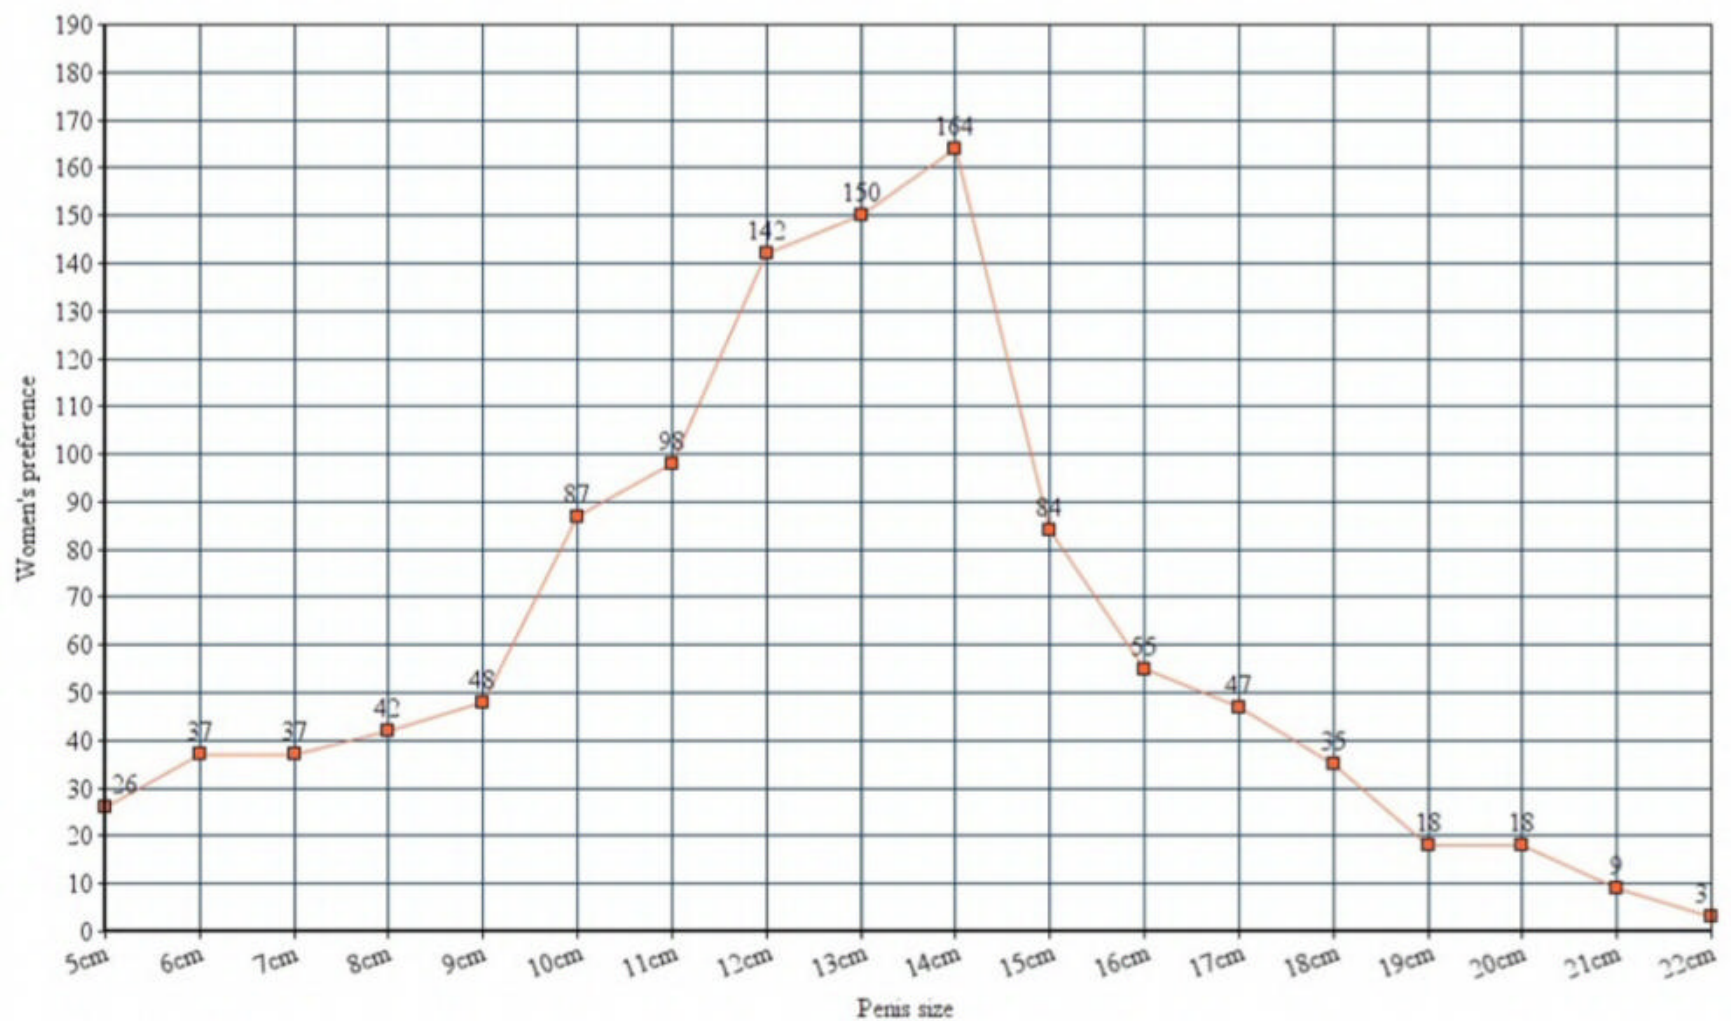

Can you imagine having a truck, and not having something to load on it?

After you reflect on other metaphors that have to do with the above questions, I'll give you facts as to why your penis is never going to be small enough not to satisfy a woman.

Women have a vaginal cavity between 7cm and 10cm, which, when aroused can expand to a maximum of 14cm. This is the case of a big vagina. Usually, its size is smaller, depending on each woman physiognomy.

On the other hand, you should know that the two points of the vagina's high excitation are located in the middle of the its cavity about 7cm from its entrance, and at a high percentage at the entrance of the vagina, in the clitoris.

Penis size and satisfaction. 1100 women surveyed.

A further fact is that the clitoris is highly sensitive to friction - and even though this tiny dot at the entrance of the vagina would be very small, the clitoris with its millions of nerve terminals which expand between the legs and pelvis - in various dimensions depending on the woman, bestowing them with a great capability for pleasure.

Are you still obsessed about your penis size?

And I'm going to tell you a few more things about the vagina; at the bottom of it, at about 10cm to 14cm, is located the cervix, which has no longer anything to do with sexual satisfaction, but with the release of menstrual blood, and the entry of sperm. If the penis is too big, this will cause relative harm, which leads to pain, and decreases or, in the case of susceptible women kills the pleasure.

However, why is it they want a bigger one?

According to psychologists, you can see three considerations: They want a bigger one because it is popularly desired (even if they feel pain).

They want a bigger one because they don't have a concept of their own about what they like (even if they feel pain).

That because of situations external to sex, they like to feel pain (implying sadism). According to doctors, you can see three physical reasons: Your vaginal area is hurt and does not have enough sensitivity to perceive real pleasure. Her mood is low, and she can't mentally enjoy sex any longer, thinking she can make up for it with the size. Her sexuality is withered and must be rehabilitated. None of the above is your fault!

However, if science, psychology, biology, and reality don't get you out of this lousy thinking about size, I'm going to present you with a survey conducted in June of this year of 1100 women in Latin America, (where according to traditional studies the most giant penises are) between the ages of 21 to 45.

Still doubting?

Now, I have for you these stories, from Inciter Magazine close friends, who's send us some answers:

Annie (name changed by request), 28 years old:

"My husband is a love, and also charming and tender. We've been married for three months, we met at Tinder, and our attraction was immediate. We had sex on the first date, and I would say her penis is 18cm. A week after we met, we got married in Las Vegas, a little crazy. Today, three months later, I don't feel like having sex with him.

Before our marriage, I masturbated at least 3 times a day, and went to have sex with some friend when I didn't have a boyfriend. However, now his penis has caused me pain, I feel mistreated, and I can not have a normal sexual appetite, recently I bought lubricant because I can not do it naturally. The pain sensation has killed my passion, on the other hand, I would say that the ideal size is about 13 centimeters, for with that measure, I have felt comfortable. I say it, because I had a boyfriend for years who has that penis size, and I achieved years of orgasms.

Maria (name changed by her request), 45 years old:

"I was married for 12 years; at the end of my marriage, my sex life was a sadness.

We divorced, I lasted the last few years without having sex. As soon as I signed my divorce, I started going to the gym, and I had surgery, putting on massive breasts, wanting to have crazy sex because my repressed desires were turning me into a sad person.

One of my best friends recommended me to go to San Andres (Colombia), where there are some black Caribbean men with giant members. We were there, at least 4 weeks, having crazy sex. Whoever reads my confession will say that I enjoyed it, but it's not like that, every day of this sexual trip was a pain that I felt more as a punishment than a gratification.

On the second day I wanted to quit. My friend, who is 10 years older than me and had 4 children, was still tolerant; apparently, her insensitivity let her enjoy penetration of a larger penises without much feeling.

Finally, when I got out of there my life was changed negatively, because I was afraid of sex, and when I felt sexual desire, I could not find any satisfaction. I went to a good sexologist who analalized my embroil, who advised me to go to a doctor, who made me some tests, and saw that because of the size of my vagina the giant penis` size damaged my vagina sensitiveness. I had to wait for year to regain my sexual desire, and now I have a boyfriend, who sincerely would say has an average penis or a smaller one, but makes me have orgasms.

"Over 3 years ago I was a Webcam model, I had to play with dildos. I must be honest and confess that I never managed to find satisfaction in putting all the dildo in my vagina. On the contrary, I felt pain and discomfort. It killed my sexual desire. Now, after finishing my studies, I got a job as a teacher. One of my students' parent invited me for a beer and we had sex. Initially, his penis didn't look to me as what you might think is big, but when I was penetrated, I felt the right amount of friction on the proper area and I had many orgasms. I naive about the penis size.

The doors of The Inciter have opened for your opinions and experiences I hope this information will benefit and lead you to find a way to enjoy like Champions do.

HITCHHIKING

A few weeks ago, I broke up with my boyfriend; it's been hard days, and the truth was I used to have sex at least twice a week. The memories were overwhelming, and so was my desire of him.

My friends asked me to hang out, but I didn't dare, I didn't want be a show off or end up drunk calling whom left me for another. It was a Thursday afternoon, and I was leaving the university, I got in the car and waited patiently to get out of the parking lot.

On the exit curve was a student hitchhiking, I never took someone that way for different reasons, security, having to chat talk to a stranger, the ritual of getting to know each other, etc.

That day I felt the impulse, and I stopped, I rolled down the window and told him I was going to 72nd Street. It was a fare ride for him. We began to talk; it was fun; he had a great attitude; he lived in a poor neighborhood and had earned the opportunity to study at a private university thanks to a government program. He did not feel sorry for his roots or his economic condition.

I was shocked by his confidence, especially when I locked it at the time. After a few minutes in the interminable traffic, I couldn't stand it, and I share with him my drama. He never judged me, never said to me that everything was going to be alright; he just told me that everyone should face their own demons and live their dilemmas even if they seem unsurpassable.

We continued to move forward and without explanation I began to imagine that I was having sex with that stranger.

I asked him if he was in a hurry or I could invite him for a drink, he told me that he would gladly accompany me for a while.

I took him to my apartment, where I offered him a beer, and we sat down to talk about life, dreams, and pains. In a moment of impulse, I told him that I needed to have sex, I blushed, and in a second, I was offering apologies. I don't know what's wrong with me you must think I'm crazy.

He looked at me and shyly replied: I'd love to, the problem is that I've never done it before, it gives me some sorrow. I couldn't believe it, I told him that I didn't want to hurt him, nor was I prepared to enter into a serious relationship and he told me that neither was he, that his goal was to finish his career and help his family.

I sat on him and started kissing it; I needed to feel something like that. I took off my clothes and untied his pants; we were excited. I put my hand between his underwear and stimulated him, I wanted to feel it inside me, but suddenly he was ashamed because it finished over my hand.

It was too much for him, a virgin boy, someone who didn't expect such a situation. I reassured him and told him there was nothing to be ashamed of. In less than 10 minutes, he had recovered, and I must confess it was better than I expected.

Sex with my ex-partner had long since fallen into monotony, no surprises, no risk, no adventure. After sleeping a few hours, I woke up and he was gone. He arranged everything in the kitchen and left me a note that said: I never imagined that my first time would be so special. See you around.

SEXY RISK

I was in my 20s, an age where I wanted to experiment almost everything. And good luck smiled at me when it came to women; I slept with at least one different woman every week. I had started having relationships with my neighbor, the sister of a great friend with whom we shared our childhood and adolescence. That's how things happened, we met, we had sex, and that's it. We were still friends, and neither of us expected more from the other.

We both lived with our parents, and that made it a little more challenging to find spaces for our encounters. We usually did it with our families at home, said we were going to see a movie and under a blanket, things happened.

When I was left alone, I called her, and she ran to visit me, the same thing would happen when her family went out.

After several months, one day my mom said she was going out, and I was coming back at noon. I took the opportunity to call her and wanted to do something special. In the bathroom of my parents' room, there was a bathtub, so I prepared it to welcome my friend.

In the beginning, she said that it was something because it was my parents' room, but it was not difficult to convince her. We were having a great time with music and bubbles when all of the sudden my mother knocked on the bathroom door. She had come back earlier, and we didn't hear the door.

My immediate reaction was to tell her I wanted to use the bathtub, and that's why I was there, that I was coming out. She told me it was okay. She couldn't tell my friend was there. I dried myself up and put her clothes in a place where they wouldn't be noticed. I told her wear on a towel, that I was

I going to distract my mother so I that I could take her out of there without her noticing.

My friend, naked, remained in the bathtub behind a curtain while I looked for a way to find the moment to take her out. Minutes passed, and the situation became riskier.

My mom went into the room, and bathroom and took some things without notice that my friend was there. She told me her appointment had been canceled. I was about to give up when I saw I wasn't going to be able to get my friend out without her noticing.

Then she told me she was going to bring something for lunch, those 10 minutes came as if from heaven, my friend immediately got dressed and left the house and was back to normal.

For a moment, I thought it was going to be the last time in our sexual adventure... it was the opposite.

The risk we live that day we were about to be discovered made us look for new ways of meeting... public places, and places where the adrenaline was higher. But those are other stories I will share with you later.

WILD

HOW TO CALM YOUR WIFE AND BE HAPPY IN THE PROCESS.

Since the Middle Ages, it has been considered that women's temperament is sometimes tricky.

Sometimes acts as simple as going out for a beer with friends, going out to see girls, being late after football, or sometimes for no reason at all, is a trigger for a country war with your beloved.

Have you ever wondered what triggers this terrible temperament?

With an excellent historical tour, we will teach you always to solve any problem with women.

Perhaps you should know that this puzzle has been in force since the beginning of known human history, and has gone through multiple approaches starting with the Egyptians and the Greeks, during the Middle Ages, the Renaissance, and finding medical solutions applicable in the nineteenth century, evolving in the twentieth century, with a simpler answer diagnosed as hysteria!

Let us start with the Egyptians, who considered this lousy attitude as a disease, which starts in the womb due to the chronic lack of sexual activity, which in turn spreads throughout the body. Thus, it is supported by an old reconstructed papyrus found by one of the many explorer teams; the indicated solution by this good papyrus, points out the stimulation of the vagina in order release this discomfort beforehand it is spread throughout the body.

Passing on to the Greeks, who recorded this generalized female discomfort in the books referring to such pathologies made by Hippocrates and Galen, Plato himself indicated that, the uterus in its vitality to procreate children should always be active in order to avoid the terrible pathology of this dreadful temperament as an indirect suggestion that a healthy sexual activity should be prescribed to eliminate the hysteria.

In the Middle Ages, the subject became an indicator of 'demonic behavior,' thus controlled by the Catholic Church, with punishments which could have infractions such as the bonfire and the gallows, which led to the establishment several lodges which focused their activities on ritualistic and hidden practice of sexual pleasures.

With the arrival of the Renaissance and its evolution focused on the humanism, the feminine hysteria, is contextualized through a biological, human parameter, centralizing in a pure natural sexual desire which must be taken care of and complemented with musical therapies of color, naked walks and other adaptations of the epoch; giving opening to private clubs, wherein throughout the use of wine and music, the liberation of the hysteria was sought, through the tacking the disease for the emancipation from the repressed sexual desire with such reception, that it could be seen as a periodic plan for the good health.

Finally, with the arrival of the nineteenth century, comes the modern medicine and with it, the useful applied remedies, with a purely medical and scientific scope. Consisting on a dynamic merely focused on the sexual desire satisfaction, hand in hand with medicine; with medical therapies such as: vibrating chairs, horseback rides and bicycle rides.

A trendy one stands out, with the attendance to thermal baths, and direct jets to the vagina-failing though, because the little frequency to which one patient could attend to therapy which let to many doctors to focus in generating medical appointments where the doctor or his assistant masturbated his patient in order to induce an orgasm.

You will think this activity was pleasant, nevertheless, great exhaustion arose for the doctors who gave the therapy, for there were women who lasted hours before achieving an orgasm.

This led to the invention of multiple objects such as crank machines, steam generators, adapted sewing machines, and in a medical conclusion, this led to the conclusion that the solution was in the vibration, doing experiments with the use of machines powered by air and electricity.

The vibrator in its stage of mechanical apparatus and medical use.

Pills with iron for blood flow travel to the female genitals and thus generate more pleasure.

It was until the 1880, that the great Joseph Mortimer Granville generated an electric and portable investment, suitable and moderately affordable, called "battery vibrator." Popularizing this useful gadget and taking it to a giant evolution nowadays, to which we will not go into detail, because it is a theme.

We hope that with this tour the good Inciter gives you, you may begin to solve this sort of sexual problem with your beloved.

THE DJ

MUSCLE CARS FOR EVERYONE

Enrique Leyton, CEO Founder of Leyton Cars

You must remember Eleanor, the majestic Ford Mustang 1967 GT model with the Shelby GT500E accessory and exterior kit, which has generated a high impact on the memory of all lovers of power machines, thanks to its appearance in the movie "60 Seconds" featuring Nicolas Cage and Angelina Jolie.

This majestic work managed to enliven the recognition of a valiant craftsman of automotive mechanics, whose high detail managed to replicate this beautiful automotive part, to the point of generating the to it, a certification of the highest quality, placing his workshop as the focus of worldwide recognition.

The craftsman, Enrique Leyton, a Colombian who was born in the workshops from childhood has managed to understand the functioning of the engines quickly. His father, who repaired engines of what we now know as Muscle Cars, was the one who showed him that 'technical seed' that eventually became a talent, leading Enrique to repair his first engine at the age 11.

After its first premiere, he worked during the 80s in a Chevrolet workshop, repairing line vehicles, where he learned the corporate and administrative management of a successful workshop, until one day in the company of his wife, he decided to establish his own workshop in order to attend the cursory mechanical needs of Chevrolet vehicles.

In his workshop, he achieved success from day one, until one day, passionate about high-powered machines, he renovated a Chevrolet Bel Air Coupe, merely a car for his personal use, to go out and have fun on weekends. His Chevy was such an achievement that it bestowed quick instant recognition.

The view from Enrique Leyton's Office into his workshop

His father, who repaired engines of what we now know as Muscle Cars, was the one who showed him that 'technical seed' that eventually became a talent, leading Enrique to repair his first engine at the age 11.

After its first premiere, he worked during the 80s in a Chevrolet workshop, repairing line vehicles, where he learned the corporate and administrative management of a successful workshop, until one day in the company of his wife, he decided to establish his own workshop in order to attend the cursory mechanical needs of Chevrolet vehicles.

In his workshop, he achieved success from day one, until one day, passionate about high-powered machines, he renovated a Chevrolet Bel Air Coupe, merely a car for his personal use, to go out and have fun on weekends. His Chevy was such an achievement that it bestowed quick instant recognition.

Enrique's recognition for his leading work comes hand in hand with a worldwide boom in the restoration of classic vehicles, boosted by international TV channels in the United States and in some European countries. However, with more challenges to overcome than his peers, Enrique creates Leyton Cars, with the unique plan to renovate in detail, technically and with artisan parallel, all the old and good cars that are abandoned.

Renovation workshops seem somehow normal, as the TV news in channels specializing in the automotive renovation flourish. However, Leyton Cars had had to overcome significant challenges, since it is located in Bogotá city - the capital of Colombia. Which at that time was surrounded by guerrillas' warfare and drug trafficking; wherein the economy was fragile and afflicted. Above all, its culture of values regarding the old are very weak, not to mention that cheap cars of low cylinders abound and getting spare parts can a whole accomplishment.

None of this prevented his clients to continually renew their vehicles at Leyton Cars. You must be used to see impressive Mustang, Camaro, and GTOs on TV, but those cars renewed in this craft workshop were typically cars of the region, such as Renault 4, 6 and 12, Simca, Fiat 147, Toyota Land Cruiser, Alpine; arrangements requested by his nostalgic customers, who grew up when their parents owned one of these cars.

Until in 2006 during the global boom in vehicle renovation, and the renewed taste for Muscle Cars, Leyton Cars meets with one of its customers, who tells him that there is a Ford Mustang 1967 GT abandoned in a warehouse near Cali City. Which came to be the same Ford Mustang generated identically in parallel with the production of Eleonora, the Mustang of the film "60 Seconds", which years ago had had caused a great commotion. His client tells him that he wants to reproduce the Eleanor on detail, a challenge that puts Leyton Cars in a position of great triumph or significant failure.

"It was not easy, it is an American vehicle, the possibilities of doing this renovation in countries like the United States are easy, but being in Colombia is a challenge, almost unattainable, due to situations of restrictions on imports, the devaluation of the peso, and the spare parts shipment time." (Enrique Leyton)

Initially, for being a project of great importance, the disadvantage was the budget, since in Colombia there is a gap of many poor and very few rich, the challenge in solving this was to have an ally in the United States, for the selection, purchase, and shipment of spare parts. Can you imagine all that which was achieved, now the door opens for the first significant project for Leyton Cars, which without exaggeration, was planned centimeter by centimeter, beginning with a tremendous technical preparation on the operation of the machine, and what the Ford wanted to see exhibited on this model, so it is that guided by a neat and solid hunch, it takes a year for Enrique Leyton to have the Eleanor ready.

Its impact reached as far as Eleanor's original manufacturer, who certified the authenticity of Leyton Cars' work, which catapulted it into the renewed world of classic car restoration.

Overcoming its own challenge in these 23 years, this excellent small company has developed a concept to reduce in costs and the delivering time.

"Typically Leyton Cars, has overcome the delivery times, for vehicles that at the restoration workshop in countries like the United States, take about one or two years to deliver the restored car, we have reached such a point of providing the work in between 3 to 6 months, which also leads to it to be cheaper to make any restoration." (Enrique Leyton)

The constant evolution and the growing acquisitive power have made this industry grow, generating incredible transformations for these generous classics, merged with the proper technology and safety, bringing about a unique driving experience, and the valorization of the vehicle. Opening the doors to a new way to generate heritage and enjoy life wildly.

This is why inciter Magazine, brings to its readers the section of Muscle Cars, where we will show month by month, a different car, and its restoration process, to entertain and teach the fans of the classics and fast vehicle models.

"The labor in Colombia is very cheap, and of high quality;and that generates the low costs so you renew your classics with us, considering how expensive it can be in countries like the United States." (Enrique Leyton)

We'll leave you with Eleanor's restoration gallery....

THE GRAFFITI TOUR

In the most traditional area of downtown Bogotá, amidst cafes, museums, hostels, libraries, and universities, it is a hidden place that attracts attention for its colors and theme.

It is the Bogotá Graffiti house, a business that in just a few months has become a must for hundreds of foreign tourists passing through the Colombian capital. These travelers from diverse backgrounds learn about the Graffiti tour through social networks and websites.

Urban art in the streets has become a unique attraction, and Bogotá is today one of the most representative cities on this subject in Latin America. Local

Local governments lent their support to these expressions as long as they do not threaten the infrastructure and image of the capital.

The tour takes place in the town of La Candelaria from 2011 and takes place every day in two hours: 10 am and 2 pm. To participate, people can reserve their spot voluntarily or arrive at the meeting place in the park of journalists.

The activity does not represent any required payment, and participants know that donations are welcome in case they want to make them. The tours are in English, and there are private tours in other languages such as French and German.

This activity has gained hundreds of followers in the world and has contributed to improving tourism in the area. Jahir Dimaté, one of the guides and leaders of this project, tells us how the experience has become viral and has conquered the hearts of foreign visitors.

"It is essential to show the culture of Bogota through the graffiti. We are not merely painting walls and damaging walls, on the contrary, we are beautifying the city and expressing our ideas.

From this year the tour ends at Casa Bogotá Graffiti where tourists can appreciate public works by different artists from different parts of the world. They can also buy souvenirs such as t-shirts, key rings, caps, and mugs.

Is it possible for me to get back the sex I didn't have?

Hello.

Inciter, in response to your call, would like to tell you a story.

Women after 35 are hornier than at 20, or at least that's my case. I got married when I was at the University, you could say my husband was a good man, sweet and affectionate; but sex was boring.

The situation was normal to me because I had not had sex with another man.

A couple of years ago, I went to visit him at the office and found him having sex with his lover, several years younger. I asked for the divorce, and a friend recommended me a lawyer, whom when I met made me feel new sensations.

I had sex with him, I must confess that something unlocked within me, and I also had sex with his law partner, with the judge's assistant and with the driver of that took me to court, all of them in a couple of days.

To be honest, something something got unlocked in me, I've had sex with over 150 men in the last few years.

I don't know, maybe my husband didn't turned me on, but I realized that I've never been as happy as I am at this stage of my life with this new sexual freedom.

Thank you, Inciter.

*Dear friend, thank you for attending our call.

It is possible you are mentally discovering pleasure, and if your body requests it, you must take heed of it. Enjoy it.

If my husband doesn't want to have sex with me, can I have sex with my neighbor?

Inciter, I have a story.

For years my husband does not want to have sex with me, I do not know the precise reason.

But I'm a woman, I like sex.

Recently neighbor visited me who was 10 years older than me, that was sweet. And one day I couldn't open the door, he invited me to his house until my husband got home.

I must say that although he was not the most handsome, I loved his kindness and courtesy.

THEY WANT TO SHARE . . .

We talked for a while, a few weeks ago I went to bring him some cookies that I learned to make watching TV, and I saw him masturbating in the back of his house .

I lost my senses and was weak, I entered and began to kissing his body. We had delicious sex, and since my husband is never there, I went each afternoon to have some sex.

*Dear friend, thank you for your message. It is valid to tell you, you should get divorced as soon as possible. In this precise case, you should's carry a burden, since your husband no longer feels like it, while your neighbor does.

Have sex with care, and try to divorce, so live an excellent relationship with your neighbor freely.

Is it too rude to have sex with men in secret?

Hey Inciter.

I do not want to say my name because I can be punished. I go to a church where it's forbidden to have sex, but I'm looking bad for it.

Sometimes I'm walking, and I see a man, and I get horny, sometimes I'm just sleeping feel sexual desire, or I just eat and get horny.

I have masturbated a few times, I would say no more than 5 a day.

Could it be that there are men who want to have sex with me in secret?

I don't want to be punished, but I want to have sex. Although I think making them to have sex in secret is a little rude with them.

What to do?

*Dear friend, you can find several men who will have sex with you in secret, to avoid being punished in your church. Most men don't think it's an insult, and I'm sure many will understand and support your situation. In case anyone does not agree to be consistent with your sexual appetite and your religion, they can get another lover without remorse.

Is it wrong to have sex outside of marriage if I love my husband?

Dear Inciter editor, I read your sensible advice and attend

THEY WANT TO SHARE . . .

I am married, and I have been unfaithful 18 times in 3 years. Something is wrong with me, there's no doubt about it, but is it really that bad to have sex with other people? Some time ago, I realized my husband has had adventures with my sister and my aunt in our own house, and to be honest, I didn't get mad about it. Even more, I totally understand it, we love each other, we laugh, and we enjoy life together, still sometimes I have assorted appetites. Some days I like men bald, others fat, or black, others blonds, but today, for example, I feel like having sex with a Latino. Is there anything wrong with it?

*Dear friend, thank you for contacting us.

It seems your family has a tremendous sexual appetite, which is very good. On the other hand, you should clarify the situation with your husband, and have an reliable relationship being that you share a harmonious relationship that shouldn't be broken, due to the qualities both share. I advise thee to put the cards on the table and live freely.
